

The Most Serious and Most Creative ROCK BAND at a Song Contest at Jesuit Gymnasium

By Kristupas, Grade 7 student

“Bad dum, bad dum”, I can hear my heart beating so fast, as my band waits for our turn to sing and play on the stage of the Jesuit Gymnasium. One by one, the songs start and end. As our turn came, we stood up and then there was that moment when every student of the Gymnasium turned around and looked at us. One by one, we made it through the audience. We set everything up, and Daniel started playing the tune, I started singing, and as we got to the chorus, we were rockin' out, the song ended and everybody clapped madly. We felt as if this song was the only good song out of all the 25 bands. The judges then asked: “So why did you call your band “Clock Work Orange”? I replied:” Well, the teachers made that name up for us.” Then the other statements were about how good the song was, and all that.

Also, after the first, we had a second song. The judges were amazed. The audience clapped wildly. That was the end of our awesome show.
